COURT AGAIN CRITICIZED

The criticism of the Supreme Court from the American Bar Association, at its recent meeting in Chicago, is the latest evidence that the highest court of the land is seriously out of step with the vast majority of legal experts in the United States today.

The latest case, overturning Supreme Court decisions favorable to Communists, follows a repudiation of the top court by the Supreme Court Justices of the various states. In law, it runs contrary to the long-standing rule that the lower courts are bound by the decisions of the higher courts.

Congress, and the President, should see to it that qualifications for membership on the top court are carefully framed. For example, there is little to the present task of reviewing Supreme Court appointments as political plums to outstanding jurists.

To be a Supreme Court Justice, one should have judicial training or a high level career of a number of years. This should be an inviolate prerequisite. The next Congress should do all the current session, or in the Congress, to insert legislative requiring such qualifications.

WATCH YOURSELF — PHYSICALLY

Above the only time that the average citizen pays any attention to him, or her personal well-being, is when illness or accident puts them in bed.

This is, unfortunately, the truth in regard to many persons. It is a reflection upon the intelligence that men and women are supposed to have.

The neglect of the body is only comparable to our negligence in regard to mental powers. Every individual has abundant opportunity to improve intellectually, but few of us bother ourselves to do so.

When it comes to the realm of spiritual improvement, the average individual goes into complete eclipse, except in extremely rare and trying moments. Those of us who believe in the possession of a soul know full well that our spiritual growth is possible and most of us believe that it is the great function of human existence.

In spite of that belief and the fact that moves us along life's highway, we eventually drift along without bothering very much about principles or the lack of them. Few of us attempt to guide our daily lives by the eternal verities we profess to accept. This is a bit foolish, when one begins to reflect upon it.

The encouraging thing about individual growth is that it requires no committee meetings, no mass parades, and no assistance from other people. It is one job that the individual can plan and complete upon personal initiative. The only question is, "When will we begin?"

A NOTE ON EISENHOWER

For what it is worth, if anything, The Times-Virginian is of the opinion that Mr. Eisenhower is a better and more effective President of the United States today than at any time during his tenure of office. It is admittedly disheartening with Army training, to have early years as our President, he delegated too much authority to others. He tried to maintain a more neutral check rein, by and large, permitted too much delegation of authority. But, after the Sherman Adams incident, the President stepped in and began to do more of his own work. And, now, with Mr. Dulles on the sidelines, the President is working harder than ever before in the job of being President. This newspaper has always had great personal confidence for Mr. Eisenhower, and only on occasion made the point that he delegated too much authority. It now appears that since Mr. Adams is not with us, and Mr. Dulles is hospitalized, that Mr. Eisenhower is taking command. That is all to the good.

EASTER SEALS

The opening of the 1959 Easter Seal campaign interests all good citizens. Helping crippled children is one of the most rewarding things we can do in our efforts to help our fellow-man.

A number of children walk today because of the existence of the Easter Seal effort and the work in past years. We are confident that our readers will desire to aid this arm ana campaign.

Washington Notes

Foreign Aid Fight Seen

President Eisenhower is reported ready to make an even stronger fight than last year for support of his $4,000,000,000 foreign - aid program.

Some Republican leaders say they are convinced he would veto any Senate reconsideration of any bill which cut deeply into the program he proposed.

Debt Cut Proposed

Representative Udall (D., Ariz., has proposed legislation which would require that the national debt be reduced by at least 1 per cent a year.

Udall said he would vote for higher rates if such a step were necessary to reduce the deficit, which now stands at more than $247,000,000,000.

Hits Farm Aid

Senator Williams (R., Del.) says farm price-support program is "a complete failure and waste."

Says Williams, "The high rigid price supports have resulted in government guarantees on the production of commodity type farming operations. Investors certainly do not guarantee the investment of the small farmer."

Under the program, received Government loans totaling $2,500,000 in 1957.

Contract Fight

Maryland has joined the fight between New York and California over defense contracts.

New York senators have said there is favoritism toward California in awarding defense contracts. California's congressional delegation has countered by accusing New York and other states of trying to nullify the West Coast's defense business.

Now Senator Butler (R., Md.) is backing New York.

Says Butler: "While California basks in the sunshine of favoritism, Eastern manufacturers fully capable of handling missile and rocket contracts are waiting for Government business.

Scraps 43 Vessels

Five more proud United States battleships have been earmarked warships are going on the scrap heap.

The Navy recently announced that 500,000 tons of combat vessels built at a cost of $627,540,000, are to be sold for scrap steel.

The scrapping program is to be spread out over about one year.

Surplus Farm Exports

Uncle Sam's stocks of surplus farm products are receding into the background as sources of supplies for exports.

Instead, changes being made by the Eisenhower Administration are restoring commercial privately owned stocks of grain for those selling the products abroad.

Threat of Veto Ignored

House Democrats have shrugged off veto warnings from President Eisenhower and voted to boost Federal highway aid outlays far beyond President Eisenhower's proposals.

Harter Favored

If President Eisenhower is forced to appoint a new Secretary of State, the general understanding among Senate Republicans is that he will promote Under Secretary Christian Herter.

Some influential Senate Democrats are known to have told Administration officials also that if Secretary Dulles decides he cannot carry on because of his illness, they would regard Herter as the most acceptable replacement.

Compares Job

Washington - Senator Williams, (D., N. J.) has figured out the difference between the two houses of Congress.

A former Representative, the freshman Senator says, "I've got a larger office, more help, and ten times as much work."

Cultural Exchange

Washington - The U. S. and Russia have changed notes on the subject of cultural exchanges, and have reached agreement without too much difficulty.

This historic document, about a year ago, is said to be well that both sides are considering extending the pires next January.

It's not time that makes an antique. It's change!

Within easy remembering for many VEPCO customers, every household used the same stove-heated flatirons that had been known for a thousand years. Yet, today, such irons are antiques, doing duty as doorstops.

And that's just one tiny symptom of the sweeping change since VEPCO was born in 1909. For during those fifty years, electricity has become the universal servant, the hardest working farm hand.

It's meant a soaring need for electric power. And, to keep ahead of that need, VEPCO has constantly increased its long-range research and planning.

Because VEPCO planners have looked far ahead, you now have power aplenty for all today's new electric servants. And because VEPCO engineers are already worrying about your needs in 1969, you can feel sure of the future.

For VEPCO is now adding more new capacity each year than its entire electric capacity in 1909! More power to help you work better, farm better, LIVE BETTER—ELECTRICALLY!

BLOAT PREVENTIVES STILL BEING SOUGHT

Another development in the long search for ways to prevent bloat is reported by agricultural scientists at VPI.

They say bloat in animals grazing alfalfa pasture has been controlled by the addition of soybean oil, lard oil, and lecithin mixed with soybean oil to the grain ration at the rate of 0.25 pound or more per head daily. Grain was fed twice daily. The addition of the oils to the drinking water at the rate of 2% was also effective.

In recent tests, the overnight feeding of an average of 12 pounds of excellent quality oat hay per cow significantly reduced the incidence and severity of acute bloat resulting from eating succulent, immature alfalfa pasture.

Dairy scientists also report on an attempt to increase the eating rate of dairy cows by adding water to the concentrate mixture. High-producing cows may not, in the time allowed when milking parolrs are used, eat the necessary amount of concentrate. In one study cows ate 0.57 pound of dry mix per minute, while the rate increased to 1.39 per minute when 1.5 pound of water was added per pound of feed. More recent work supports this finding. Earlier work also showed that milking rate was favorably influenced by decreased eating time. However, in later experiments, no evidence of such an effect was found.
